The U.S. Department of Agriculture provides undergraduate students with a challenging internship and scholarship opportunity. The program is designed to promote public service and create access to higher education for students attending one of the 1994 Land-Grant Institutions, the accredited Tribal Colleges and Universities.

USDA-Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS)

The Foreign Agriculture Service (FAS) is the United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) lead agency in international activities to develop foreign markets for U.S. agriculture. The FAS is primarily responsible for improving foreign market access for U.S. products by collecting and analyzing data on world agricultural production, policy, and trade competition. The Agency advances the growth of U.S. agricultural exports through market intelligence, trade policy, trade capacity building, and trade promotion programs. It also publishes information to U.S. farming and business interests on agricultural commodities in the global market. The FAS also administers USDA export credit guarantees and food aid programs.
